RUNAWAY CAR ON HIGHLAND HILL

A runaway car on the Highland and New Paltz trolley line, dashed down the glen toward the river Wednesday at a rate of 60 miles an hour and scared a carful of women and children, and people who happened to see it.

The car was making the nine o'clock trip to the ferry and the tracks were slippery from the fresh and falling leaves. At the old toll gate the motorman threw on his brakes hard but they would not hold. "Lock the door," he shouted to the conductor, as he did the same on his end of the car. Their action probably prevented several scared women from leaping from the speeding car as it swerved down the steep incline toward the river. The car was not brought under control until it neared the Cashdollar hotel where the brakes at last took hold and held it. No one was hurt but everyone was scared.

SIX ESCAPE FROM SING SING

All Were Members of the Mutual Welfare League and All Have Been Captured—Only One Made Resistance.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Ossining, Oct. 20.—A sprained ankle led to the arrest today of five of the six long-term convicts—all members of the Mutual Welfare League—who yesterday escaped from Sing Sing in one of the largest deliveries in the penitentiary's history. He is William Anson, alias Kid McCoy. He was found in a coal shed at Elmsford, two miles south of Tarrytown where pain from a sprained ankle had compelled him to take refuge. He told his captors the revolver which the six prisoners carried were taken to the prison by visitors from New York.

William Tammany, one of the six convicts who escaped in an automobile truck from Sing Sing yesterday, was captured early today near the Rockefeller estate in the Pocantico Hills. It was reported there. He is the fourth to be taken back into custody.

Of the three others, caught late yesterday, Morris Curtis is in the prison hospital with a bullet wound in his abdomen, while Frank Lutz and Thomas Hyland are safely in cells.

A strong squad of police and prison guards early today combed miles of territory around the prison for the other two. The delivery was one of the largest in the history of the penitentiary. Each of the six men who escaped were members of the Mutual Welfare League, founded by ex-Warden Thomas Mott Osborne.

Curtis was wounded and captured just north of the Tarrytown station while making inquiries for the next train to New York. Attired in a rubber coat and keeper's hat, he had engineered the escape yesterday by standing up in the auto truck inside the prison gate and signalling the gate keeper that it was "All Right." When detected last night he disobeyed the guards' command "hands up" and drew a revolver. The weapon became entangled in his clothes and the next moment he dropped with a bullet in his stomach. The other three men caught made no armed resistance to the guards.

The last to be captured was Alfred Steinhauser, serving twenty years for robbery and assault. He was surrounded by guards at 3300 Road, five miles from here, shortly before noon. All six are now back in prison.

MAN IN CELLAR.

Stranger Found in Cellar and Police are Notified.

Thursday evening a telephone call to police headquarters resulted in Policemen Ryan and Reardon being sent to the corner of Pearl and Green streets, in the house occupied by the Eggers and Smiths, who had found a strange man in the cellar. The man made his escape through a cellar window before the police reached the scene. What, if anything, was stolen, is not known.

Timely Topics for Sunday.

On Sunday night, in St. James' Church, the pastor, Dr. Baragwanath, will complete the series of sermons on a Modern Interpretation of the Ten Commandments, taking up Slavery and Carelessness as Modern and American sins.

Under the topic of Slavery, some very timely suggestions will be made by the preacher, as the Ninth Commandment may apply, not only to persons, but to nations and political parties.

Under the latter topic the relation will be traced between carelessness and crime and some striking illustrations will be given.

RECORD PROVES TRAVER'S FITNESS

Candidate for District Attorney Has Been Connected With That Office for 15 Years, Working up From Clerk.

Frederick G. Traver's long and faithful record in the district attorney's office made him so preeminently qualified for the office of district attorney that his designation by the Republican county convention was followed promptly by an overwhelming endorsement by the voters in the primary election, and should be followed on election day by election by a big majority.

FREDERICK G. TRAVER.

For fifteen years District Attorney Traver has been associated with the district attorney's office, which he entered as clerk during the administration of the late Judge Charles F. Cantine. He remained with Judge Cantine until the latter's election as county judge and then continued under the administration of Judge Stephan and Judge Cunningham. While performing the duties of assistant district attorney during all of these years, Mr. Traver did not become assistant district attorney in fact until that office was created by the board of supervisors several years ago, under the power reposed in them by law, when the increase of crime in the Ashokan watershed during the construction work there made it necessary that there should be a regularly appointed assistant having authority to conduct the investigation of important cases before the grand jury and their subsequent trial in court. On the day that Judge Cunningham resigned as district attorney to become a judge of the Court of Claims, Governor Whitman appointed Mr. Traver district attorney, and he has since performed acceptably the duties in whose performance he had assisted for fourteen years.

District Attorney Traver is a son of the Rev. V. N. Traver, who formerly was pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church at Eddyville and who occupied various other charges in the New York Conference until his retirement from the active ministry several years ago, since which time he has resided at Wallkill. District Attorney Traver received his education at Claverack Institute and Syracuse University and in 1898 entered the office of Judge John G. Van Ethen for the study of law. He remained there one year and then entered the office of Judge Cantine, who was then acting as district attorney. He has been with the district attorney's office since then, and his services in the prosecution and trial of criminal cases have been invaluable to the county. Under his administration the affairs of the office have been conducted ably and expeditiously.

Mostly doing his duty day by day, Mr. Traver for many years has attracted attention of which he was not aware, and his coolness in an emergency, his sound judgment, his extensive and far-reaching knowledge of criminal law, his fairness and his high principles have won the admiration for many years of everyone who in the slightest degree has had business connected with the courts or the district attorney's office.

The best efforts of Mr. Traver's life have been devoted to the people of Ulster county, whose first opportunity for expression was marked by the spontaneous burst of enthusiasm which marked his designation by Republican delegates in the county convention in August. The same spirit of enthusiasm over his selection can be found today in all parts of the county, among all people irrespective of political affiliation.

District Attorney Traver's pastime has been also along the lines of public benefit, and he is one of the organizers and most active members of the Menadelsch Club, whose annual complimentary concert has pleasure to the people of Kingston. He is married and resides at No. 29 Green street.

COMPLAINT DAY IN RECORDER'S COURT

Today was complaint day in recorder's court, there being no police cases of arrest brought to the attention of Recorder Lang, but several complaints were lodged with him.

One woman appeared to complain of her neighbor circulating untruthful stories about her. From her story it seems that she had a little boy about five years old and the neighbor next door has a little girl about the same age. The two children and another little tot play together. The other day the neighbor's little girl was undressed, not wearing as much as a stocking. The neighbor said that the woman's little boy was the one who had undressed her child, which the little boy denied. The woman who appeared this morning said she wanted her neighbor to refrain from telling the other neighbors that her boy had undressed the little girl, as the other little tot who was with the two playing corroborated the little boy's story that the girl undressed herself. Recorder Lang told the woman he would look after the matter.

Another complaint was lodged by a woman who said that her little child had been given a $5 bill to make some purchases and received back only change for a one dollar bill instead of change for a five spot.

A young boy who played truant was brought before Recorder Lang on Thursday. The lad said the reason he did not go to school was because his father misused him and beat him. The matter was held open until later in the week to give the father a chance to explain.

SERBIAN OUTPOST DO BEARDS DENOTE COURAGE? THE SERBIANS' RECORDS SEEMS TO PROVE IT.

Beard raising among the soldiers has been taken to such lengths that the French general staff has recently sent out an edict that in all cases the razor should be wielded freely. As a result several tons of precious whiskers came to grief and this in spite of the fact that luxuriant growths of whiskers are supposed to denote courage. But whiskers still grow untrammelled on the faces of the Serbians and the courage that they have recently shown in trying to regain their lost country seems to prove the old theory about the effectiveness of whiskers. The photograph shows a particularly luxuriant growth upon a Serbian on the Salonica front.

WAR AT A GLANCE

Violent fighting was today reported from every theatre of war except the Italian.

The long sustained offensive of the Serbians in Macedonia is apparently on the threshold of important results. The Serbs that captured Brod have advanced along the Tchernia river towards Monastir overcoming all resistance. A battle has been fought on the Tchernia in which the Bulgars lost very heavily and left prisoners and guns in the hands of the victors.

In France the Germans have recaptured some of the positions they had lost to the British. Great artillery duels were in progress all night despite rainy, foggy weather. Berlin reported the destruction of three British "tanks" in the Allies' latest attack.

Furious Russian attacks, some of them delivered in a snow-storm, in the Carpathians, have been repulsed on the eastern front by the Austro-German armies.

Strong Russo-Rumanian attacks are being delivered against the German allies in Transylvania and Dobruja. An unconfirmed despatch from Rome says that General von Falkenhayn, whose armies have been trying to invade Rumania, has been forced by a wound to relinquish his command.

It is reported in Rome that the Austro-Hungarians are making preparations for another tremendous offensive against the Italians. An unprecedented number of heavy guns is being used, it is said.

Further disorders are reported from Athens where hostile demonstrations have been made before the Italian, French and British embassies. Conflicting dispatches were received as to the situation in the Greek capital. One telegram stated that Greek troops were co-operating with the Italian and French forces and that the Greek cavalrymen had dispersed mobs. Another stated that the Greek authorities are giving no assistance in keeping down disorder.

Pastor Played "Shortstop."

A game of baseball scheduled for Monticello Sunday was called off by the district attorney on complaint of ministers. Bills were posted saying the game was to be played for "a purse of $200 and side bets." One minister was asked at the hearing before the district attorney as to who was going to pitch for the home team. He replied that he did not know but that he was going to play "shortstop."

Entertainment Tonight.

A pleasing entertainment will be given this evening in the chapel of the Roundout Presbyterian Church, when the three act play "Daddy" will be presented by the young people. Those taking part are Fred Van Deusen, Charles Beeres, Frank Finley, Marion Kingman, Dorothy Brown, Ethel Skelton, Marion Bell and Esther Rodie.

Harvest Home at Trinity.

Sunday, October 22, will be observed as Harvest Home Sunday at Trinity, N. E. Church. Offerings of fresh and canned fruit, vegetables, clothing and money will be thankfully received and forwarded to the Five Points Mission.

FOOD FAMINE IN NORTHERN MEXICO

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, Oct. 20.—A food famine whose extent has hitherto been concealed from outsiders by General Carranza, now threatens to contribute to the early overthrow of the de facto government in the northern states of Mexico. Reports received here today disclose that thousands are without food in the states of Chihuahua, Coahuila and Durango where Carranza's officials hold the necessities of life at prohibitive prices.

In these states the Carranza peso has dropped to two cents with every prospect that it shortly will be absolutely without value. The day wages paid labor have a purchasing power of but from 4 to 6 cents.

Carranza's agents meanwhile hold corn at $4 a bushel. This corn is paid for by the government and then taken over by Carranza's military governors who corner the market and wax fat on the distress of the populace.

Corn lines are formed every evening when women carrying tea cups gather in long columns to take their turn in exchanging the few pennies they can muster for mere handfuls of corn. Food riots take place nightly in Chihuahua, Durango, Torreón and Aguas Calientes, according to today's report and deaths from starvation and disease which run in the wake of famine mount in the hundreds every day in these four cities. The food situation as well as the collapse of the currency system bode the early downfall of the last vestige of Carranza's influence in the north.

On account of Carranza's distrust of such leaders as General Calles in Sonora, General Cantu in lower California and General Trevino at Chihuahua, he has ceased to issue ammunition to them altogether. This means that the northern troops are absolutely without any assistance from Mexico City with which to press the pursuit of Villa, were they disposed to.

Officials here attach no importance to assurances of Ambassador Designate Arrendondo to the American-Mexican commission.

Carranza will conduct an "intense" campaign to run Villa down. Evidence accumulates that Villa comes and goes through Chihuahua without interference from Carranza's forces who have never yet taken the initiative in any of the fights which the bandit leader has fought during the last six months. Latest reports indicate that the de facto troops flee whenever warned of Villa's approach.

FOUND LOST COMRADE.

Veteran of Old Twentieth Found Missing Man at New Paltz.

Major William Valiente and Edward W. Matheson attended the annual reunion of the One Hundred and Fifty-sixth Regiment at New Paltz on Thursday and while there they resurrected one of their comrades of the Old Twentieth (Eightieth New York Volunteers), from whom no tidings had been received in many years.

The resurrected comrade was Jeremiah Schoonmaker of Company D, who with his wife is living at New Paltz. During the past score of years notices have been sent to Comrade Schoonmaker at various addresses, but they were either returned to the officers of the Old Twentieth or no attention was paid to them. Comrade Schoonmaker never received them. The failure to get a reply led to the supposition that he was dead. After being found on Thursday by his old comrades, Mr. Charles R. Ross and Gustave Erik, Schoonmaker promised to attend the next reunion of his old regiment. Craig and Raphael Shaw.

WHOSE MINE SUNK THE CUNARD LINER?

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

London, Oct. 20.—An investigation was begun today to ascertain if it was a German mine or a derelict British mine that sunk the Cunarder Alaunia in the English Channel yesterday. The four members of the crew which were reported missing have been given up as dead.

The monetary loss is estimated at $10,000,000, a large portion of which falls upon American insurance companies.

A number of the 148 passengers who were landed at Falmouth before the ship struck the mine, have sent telegrams to the United States assuring friends and relatives of their safety.

HEDGES ALWAYS MAKES A HIT

Job E. Hedges, who will be one of the speakers at the big Republican mass meeting at Association Hall next Wednesday night, never has failed to interest his hearers, and he is regarded as one of the most fluent public speakers in America. His long career as a lawyer and in connection with important public matters has well qualified him to discuss the campaign issues understandingly and his many friends in Ulster county will be glad of the opportunity of giving him a warm welcome.

The Hon. Addison B. Colvin of Glens Falls, who will also speak at Wednesday night's mass meeting, has long enjoyed a wide reputation as a campaign speaker. He has enjoyed public confidence for many years and for two terms was state treasurer.

A good band will furnish music.

CORN MARKET GOES WILD

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Chicago, Oct. 20.—An advance of five cents in December and 4 1/2 cents in May today featured the wildest corn market in years here.

Prices were sent upward by the lack of offerings and active demand from all sources.

During the excitement December sold within 1/4 of May touching $7 1/4. A break of 2 1/2 followed. Trade was too big to follow. Wet weather and a scarcity of offerings of cash corn were factors.

Mohawk Might Have Been.

In a recent issue of the Lowell Courier-Citizen, there appeared a very interesting article by a motorist who had travelled some seven thousand miles in his car, through New England and eastern New York. On looking over these miles passed either in or going to and from the various beauty spots in this section of our fair land, the writer tried to determine which was the most beautiful place seen. After careful consideration this was the conclusion arrived at: "I am inclined to think that the vicinity of Lake Champlain offers the answer, either at Burlington or on the opposite side of the lake amid the Adirondacks. To choose this locality is necessary to discard Lake Mohawk, on the theory that it is not actually on an automobile route—as no machine may enter the sacred precincts of the Mohawk preserve. As a single spot reached during my own touring, undoubtedly Mohawk surpasses for distinctive character and wonderful beauty, any thing else."

Bidding For a Wife

Two Suitors Make It a Jack Pot

By F. A. MITCHEL

In America marriage brokerage is practically unknown. In Europe there are places where it is used not only by persons of lower or middle grade, but by those of rank. One day a young man entered the office of a marriage broker in an Italian city and asked the proprietor to get him a wife. The broker sat down at a table, opened a blank book, took up a pen and began to ask the man questions.

"Name?"
"Richard Thurston Wilkins."
"Age?"
"Twenty-eight."
"Occupation?"
"No occupation."
"Income?"
"Five thousand francs."
"Nationality?"
"American."
"Residence?"
"The state of California."

"I fear, Mr. Wilkins, that your income is insufficient to secure you a wife from among the better classes, but I will see what I can do for you. I know of a young lady who is refined and educated, but her parents are very poor and anxious to shift the expense of her keeping on to other shoulders than their own. It may be that they would accept a suitor for her with no better income than yours. At any rate, I will see if an introduction would be worth while. Call again tomorrow."

Mr. Wilkins was the next day informed that the broker had persuaded Signor Amodeo to consent to an introduction. There was nothing binding in this. It was simply that the parties to the contract might see and talk with each other. In short it was the first preliminary step.

"Supposing I don't fancy the lady?" asked Mr. Wilkins.

"In that case the custom is that you pay my brokersage. That is all."

Mr. Wilkins assented without asking what the amount would be, thereby incurring the distrust of the broker, who insisted on prepayment of his commission. Wilkins assented to this, paying the modest sum of 50 francs ($10). The broker explained that his charges were sometimes as high as a thousand francs, but in the case of one with so small an income he had made the charge a minimum.

Wilkins was introduced to Blanca Amodeo. She was a dark eyed signorina seventeen years of age, modest looking and with a very soft voice. During the first part of the American's visit Signor Amodeo remained in the room, but later left the two alone. This loosened Wilkins' tongue, and he strove to draw out the young lady. He found her quite willing to be drawn out, and it was not long before the two were chatting pleasantly. Wilkins was an entirely different man from any she had met before. He lacked the amenities of an Italian—indeed, seemed to her a trifle brusque—but this was more than atoned for by a certain frankness and honesty that charmed her. He was not backward in giving his estimate of European customs and the superiority of American methods. Signorina Blanca did not take offense at this, but it was evident from the snarl in her bright eyes accompanying what she said that she was chafing him.

Nothing was said during the call about its object. Wilkins took his leave as ignorant of what the young lady thought of him as when he had entered. Nevertheless he surmised that he had not made a disagreeable impression. Before leaving he asked permission to call again, and his request was cheerfully granted. This looked favorable for what the girl might do in the premises.

Wilkins instructed the broker to explain that in America couples were permitted to get acquainted before becoming engaged. He was also told to say that no immediate decision was expected from the young lady.

Signor Amodeo consented to the delay, but not to the privileges common in America during an engagement. Since there was to be nothing similar to an American engagement, this did not matter. The father had the whole affair in charge, and no word came except from him. Wilkins called at the Amodeo domicile several times. He was permitted to see Signorina Amodeo alone—that is, no one was in the room with them—but the door was left open, and there were ears in the adjoining apartment. After the third call, before departing Wilkins said to her:

"Signorina, I owe you an explanation as to why I came away from my native land for a wife, but I must ask your indulgence in the matter. I will only say at present that I have my reasons. I have seen enough of you to feel assured that you are a lovely little girl. I love you, and it is for you to decide whether or no you will be my wife."

"Signor, I appreciate the honor you do me. But you are mistaken in saying that this decision rests with me. It is my father who will act for me."

"And if the decision rested with you?"
She put out her hand and turned away her head.
Wilkins needed no other reply. He departed to make through the broker the formal proposition for the signorina's hand. His instructions to the broker were listened to in silence, and when he had finished he received the following reply:

"Signor, if you wanted Signorina Amodeo you have made a mistake in taking so much time to decide. While you have been considering another broker has introduced another party with a much larger income than yours, and he has been accepted."

"By Signorina Blanca?"
"Signorina Blanca has nothing to do in the matter. The suitor has been accepted by her father."

"Who is this new person, and what is his income?"
"He is Herr Otto Schmidt, and his income is 10,000 francs."
"Young or old?"
"Herr Schmidt is sixty years old."

"Good looking?"
"Good looking? Not at all. He has no teeth and little or no hair on his head."

"I presume Signorina Blanca would prefer almost any one else."
"Certainly. But the signorina has no choice in the matter."

"Does this old person furnish a dowry—a settlement on his bride to be?"
"No, signor."

"Very well. I see his 10,000 francs income and go him 200,000 francs better as a settlement."

"But you said your income was only 5,000 francs."

"That was for my wife's pin money."

"And you will settle this income on her?"
"Yes."

"And 200,000 francs besides?"
"Yes."

The broker pulled his mustache and thought. Presently he said:
"I think, signor, that you offer more than is necessary."

"Never mind that; carry my bid to Signor Amodeo."

The broker went to the home of his client, leaving Wilkins to await his return. He was not long gone. When he re-entered the office it was not with an expression indicating that all had been settled in his client's favor.

"I found Signor Amodeo," he said, "drawing up a contract with Herr Schmidt. I made your offer. It seems that Herr Schmidt as well as you has been concealing his property. I presume this was to make better terms."

"Not in my case; I had another reason," interrupted Wilkins.

"Herr Schmidt offers to settle on Signorina Blanca 500,000 francs."

"Tell him to make it a jack pot of 1,000,000 francs settlement, and I will open it with 100,000 francs' income besides for the bride's pin money."

"Ah, signor, you are joking!"

"Not a bit of it. If you or the others think so go to my bankers, Martinelli & Co., and learn something about my pile."

The broker departed. This time he was gone quite awhile. When he returned there was wonder in his eyes.

"Well?" asked Wilkins.

"Ah, signor, what does it mean? You, a resident of the great gold country on the Pacific ocean, come to Italy to bid for a girl who, had you decided sooner, might have been had for a song."

"Have I bid high enough? If not?"

"High enough? Not yet. Herr Schmidt turns out to be a rich brewer in Milwaukee, wherever that is. But your bankers say you own half a dozen of the biggest gold mines in California. Doubtless you can."

"What is his offer?"

"He says he is in the jack pot, sees your opening and goes you 500,000 francs in the matter of settlement."

"Tell him I call, but I insist that Signorina Blanca shall decide which is the better show down—his or mine."

"Yes, signor, but—"

"But what?"

"Where do I come in?"

"If you succeed in getting the decision left with Signorina Blanca I will make your commission 100,000 francs."

The broker shot out of the office and ran down the street at top speed to Signor Amodeo's. Presently he returned and told Wilkins that he was expected by Signorina Blanca, who would give her decision between her two suitors. Wilkins went with the broker and found Amodeo and Schmidt together. Schmidt and Wilkins bowed formally. Amodeo went to another room and came back with his daughter.

"Before I decide this question," she said, "I want to know, Herr Schmidt, why you wish to marry me and why you concealed your wealth?"

"Ach! I don't like a bluff. I am an old man, and I wish a young wife. I concealed my wealth because I know how to make a bargain."

"And you, signor," turning to Wilkins, "why do you wish me for your wife?"

"Because I love you."

"But why did you come to Italy to find a helpmate, and why did you conceal your wealth?"

"I did not come abroad purposely for a wife, but I have not married in America because my wealth is known there and one I might have chosen would have married it, not me. Having run up against your singular marriage custom here, I thought I would look into it. Of course I didn't display my wealth. I had no intention of going so far as to marry. The rest you know."

Smiling, Blanca advanced to Wilkins. He opened his arms and took her in.

When Wilkins returned to America with his Italian bride the story got about as to how he had won her, but since neither he nor his bride told the true story it was never known. The most common version was that he had won his wife at poker in a jack pot.

Didn't Want to Wish.

"Internal hot day, and makes me internally thirsty," growled the colonel, sinking into the club's biggest armchair one afternoon. "Tell them to fetch me some water, colonel," suggested a cold-hearted steward who knew the old gentleman's habits, but the ancient warrior was equal to the occasion. "Sir," he said, fixing the suggestor with a fiery glare, "I said thirsty—not dirty."

SEES A STRUGGLE BETWEEN RACES

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Mohank Lake, N. Y., Oct. 20.—That a great armed struggle between the white and yellow races for control of the Pacific can only be avoided by wise diplomacy and tact was the declaration here last night of Norbert Lyons, an editor of the Manila Daily Bulletin, speaking before the conference on the Indian and Other Dependent Peoples.

Mr. Norbert praised American treatment of the Filipinos and condemned the European attitude of essential superiority to yellow races. He said, in part:

"A better understanding of the laws and principles underlying the harmonious contact of races would be of incalculable benefit to the world. Moreover, the great world religions, adopted by a large majority of the human race, would seem to be ethically sound enough to have precluded some of the disastrous and deplorable racial classes of history.

Yet, unless something is done to prevent it, the greatest and bloodiest politico-economic conflict, that arising out of the contact of the white and yellow races, is bound to take place in the not very distant future. Its preliminary bloodiest stages have already been entered upon on the shores of the Pacific.

"The instructions of President McKinley to the first Philippine Commission, in which our Philippine policy was outlined, laid down a definite policy as affecting the relations of peoples of two different races, based on purely altruistic grounds and entirely at variance with the European practice.

"Now what is the essential difference between the conventional European theory of race contact and that of the United States? The European in dealing with other races regards racial prejudice as a legitimate and controlling factor, while the American colonial policy discounts racial prejudice and attempts to work out its problems on a basis of justice and equality. Aside from the comparative practical results of the two schools of colonial administration, the European policy is fundamentally wrong in principle. There is no such thing as absolute racial superiority.

"The only academic comparative statement as to the general equality of races that we can make is that each race is best adapted to life in its own natural habitat. From this standpoint each race may therefore be regarded as being superior to that extent. It is unnatural and unwholesome for one race to attempt by physical force to enslave or supplant another race in its natural habitat.

There need not be and there should not be any such human passion as bitter unreasoning race prejudice. Patience, adherence to established ethical standards, and good sense will surely overcome such a tendency in individuals and these same principles of conduct will be equally prolific of beneficial results as between groups of individuals such as nations and races."

Tillson, Oct. 19.—The Ladies' Aid fair was a complete success. Senator Walton and Sam Bernstein added much to the pleasure of the occasion by their able and interesting addresses.

Last Sunday was a busy day for our dominie. In the morning he taught the Bible Class in the school, then preached; at one o'clock he married at the home of the bride, Miss Mary E. Hinkley of Binnewater and Harley Markle of Bloomington. In the presence of a number of friends followed by a sumptuous dinner. At 2:30 the dominie was at the Springtown Sunday school, taught Bible Class and preached; returning home; 4:30 performed another marriage between Miss Ethel Parley and Adam L. Slater, both of Ulster Park. In the evening the dominie attended C. E. and preached on "Good Citizenship." About enough for one day.

THE OYSTER CROP

One of the Most Valuable of Those Gathered From the Sea.

ONLY THE HERRING BEATS IT

Of the More Than Forty Million Bushels of These Nutritious Bivalves Gathered Yearly This Country Supplies Over 30 Per Cent.

Of all the products of the water, oysters are, with the single exception of the sea herring, the most valuable and most important to the human race. They owe that economic pre-eminence to the fact that they have high food value and that they are palatable, cheap, widely distributed and easy to cultivate.

Oysters occur in greater or less abundance on the shores of all temperate and tropical seas, but the supply in the arms of the North Atlantic ocean exceeds that in all other waters combined. There are at least a hundred different kinds or species of oysters, with a wide range in habits, flavor, shape and size. All the oysters on the eastern and southern coasts of the United States belong to one species, which has, however, many local varieties; the native oyster of the Pacific states of a wholly different species.

In about thirty-five countries oyster farming is a special industry. The annual oyster crop of the world now amounts to more than 40,000,000 bushels, for which the fishermen and planters receive about $25,000,000. The United States furnishes nearly 30 per cent of the crop.

Few animals are more prolific than oysters, but of the millions of microscopic young that a single full grown oyster produces only a very small percentage survive infancy. The heavy natural mortality among oysters at all times is particularly marked in their early months. The newly born young are for a few hours free swimming creatures, wafted about by tides and currents, and unless they settle down on a suitable surface they quickly perish. After attaining the size that is visible to the naked eye they are not able to change their position. When the temperature, density, tides and currents are favorable the floating young go to the bottom and become attached to the shells of old oysters or to any other hard surfaces that may be present, but all that fall on a muddy or soft, sandy bottom or on slimy surfaces soon perish. Modern oyster culture aims primarily to save the free swimming young, and oyster planters therefore provide clean shells, tiles and other hard objects to which the "spat," as the young oysters are called, can attach themselves.

Oysters have been under culture longer than any other shellfish. A simple type of cultivation flourished in China at a very remote period and probably antedated by some centuries the beginning of oyster culture in Italy, which was about the year 1000 B.C. The increasing demand for oysters they came to be cultivated in all the important maritime countries of Europe. In other parts of the old world and in the western hemisphere the growing of oysters by artificial means has become an important industry, so that today oysters are the most extensively cultivated of all aquatic animals.

The human animal is not the only one that looks with favor upon the edible qualities of the oyster. At every stage in its career it is attacked by a horde of dangerous enemies, some of which are most destructive after the oyster has put on its stoutest armor. Before the young oyster attaches itself, it is extensively consumed by aquatic oysters and various other shellfish, as well as by fishes that strain their food from the water. When the oyster attains its shell a new set of shellfish enemies provided with drills begin their attacks and extract the soft parts through minute holes that they make in the valves.

The oyster growers of Long Island sound and adjacent waters suffer heavy losses from the inroads of starfishes, which, moving in waves over the bottom, devour every oyster in their path. In a single season they have been known to destroy in one state several hundred thousand bushels of marketable oysters. It seems strange at first that a weak creature like the starfish should be able to prey on an animal so strongly fortified as an oyster. The starfish attaches itself to the lips of the oyster shell and exerts a steady and long sustained suction with each of its numerous small suckers. After a time the powerful adductor muscle of the oyster becomes fatigued, the valves open, and the starfish inserts its stomach and devours the helpless oyster at leisure.

Other enemies of the grown oyster are fishes with powerful jaws armed with crushing teeth. On the Atlantic coast the most destructive fish is the black drum, a school of which may virtually clean out an oyster bed in one night. On the Pacific coast a species of sting ray is the chief offender.

The United States is particularly fortunate in its oyster supply. The output here is larger and more valuable than elsewhere. Moreover, on account of the relative low cost of oysters to the consumer in the United States, the consumption in proportion to the total population is greater than in any of the other leading oyster producing countries.

Our annual oyster output is worth about $17,000,000 to the producers. The yield has increased 70 per cent in quantity since 1880, and under the favorable conditions that now prevail is becoming larger every year.—Hugh M. Smith, Commissioner of Fisheries, in Youth's Companion.

College Niece—Oh, uncle, what a funny looking dog! He's a recent acquisition, isn't he? Uncle—Think of that now! An' here I've been callin' him a crazy yaller mongrel.—New York Times.

You have a deep interest in the way your State Department of Agriculture is conducted, for there are few departments in the State that come into personal contact with a larger number of citizens or that contribute more to the general well-being of producer and consumer.

You will have more than a passing interest, therefore, in the excellent record made by your present State administration in connection with this important department.

Briefly, the following facts, selected from an enviable record, will indicate the value of the work accomplished:

Governor Whitman's appointee to the head of this Department came from Cornell Agricultural College, a trained specialist and executive, who immediately effected a saving of $70,000.00 by dismissing unnecessary employees who had been added to the payroll by preceding administrations.

By means of conferences, at which representatives of agricultural interests, societies and organizations were present, a legislative plan was mapped out that would be for the best interests of the State.

Bills representing State-wide sentiment were passed and approved, providing the necessary money for new buildings, equipment and supplies that were badly needed because of the neglect of previous administrations.

Claims against the State for cattle and horses that had been suffering from glanders and tuberculosis, and had been killed by State order, were examined and paid. Some of these claims were from one to five years old and had been neglected by previous administrations.

For the protection of the farmer who sells his products to commission houses, the department was active in measures that would assure against loss and failure to pay for products received.

An agricultural census is being taken by school children of the State. New York is the first State to carry out such a plan, and for the first time it will know the facts regarding its productive capacity.

An investigation is under way to determine the products imported into the State and the reasons why the State does not produce more of the farm and dairy products it consumes.

Active support was given to the plan for the improvement of the State Fair and appropriations totaling $213,000.00 were approved.

A campaign to reclaim abandoned farms has been inaugurated and will be of great benefit to the people of the State.

Especially efficient work was done in controlling and stamping out anthrax and rabies, and in overcoming the ravages of blight-rust and the brown-tail moth.

This is a typical example of the constructive work that has been accomplished during the past two years by your present State administration under the leadership of Governor Charles S. Whitman.

What a pleasing and satisfactory contrast to the demoralization of departments that was present during the three preceding administrations!

The present administration has "made good" in a large way. It deserves your support at the polls no matter what your "politics" may be.

Trembling Leaves.
Leaves of the mastic tree, probably the commonest forest plant in Central America, have a queer habit of trembling violently when no wind is stirring that the human faculties can detect.

A Paradox.
"Will you please insert this obituary notice?" writes a correspondent to the editor of a paper. "I make bold to ask it, because I know the deceased had many friends who would be glad to hear of his death."

Fred Bowers' Scheme

It Worked In a Way He Had Not Counted On

By ETHEL HOLMES

Whatever it is that will induce a man to fall violently in love with a shrew has never been explained. We have stories of men who have committed this paradoxical folly, one only giving an account of what kind of a life the husband lived after marriage. Petruchio in Shakespeare's play of "Taming of a Shrew" brought his wife Katherine to subjection by simply out-heroding Herod, but this is not realism; it is rather extravagance. Shakespeare wrote the play during the period that shrews in England were brought to terms by the ducking stool, and it is questionable if they remained conquered even after promising to be good.

Ward Stanley was a young man of independent means. He had nothing to do but amuse himself. This he did from May till November in his yacht, the Eaglet. Stanley was at home on the water, his own sailing master, and never gave up the command to any one else. Had he been thrown on his own resources he could have secured a berth as master of a vessel. Fortunately, he possessed the means to run his own ship.

It would have been better for Ward Stanley had he kept his yacht in commission all winter, for in that case he would probably have been removed from the temptation of falling in love with a shrew. As it was, during the festivities attending the ice season he met Sophia Wartrace, and in a very short time she was leading him about with a book, turning now and again to give him a cut with her sharp tongue.

Nor was it with her tongue alone that she abused him. Skating with him, she led him across an air hole and when he scrambled out dripping with cold water laughed at him. Sailing with him in an iceberg, she purposely upset it, shooting herself and him a hundred yards over the smooth surface. Rather than forego the delight of risking his life, she risked her own.

There is no denying that Sophia was a very pretty girl. She possessed a trim figure, snapping black eyes and rosy cheeks, which latter fairly glowed when she was enjoying winter sports. But whether or no she would have dominated Stanley had she been as ugly as her tongue was vicious is a question. Many honest women have dominated men. Yet Miss Wartrace's beauty was doubtless an important element in her influence over Stanley.

It was said that she accepted him because a betrothal would enable her to read him more violently. This was the opinion of her sister Gwen, who was supposed to know her better than any one else. Certain it is that as soon as the engagement took place Stanley's misery was greatly enhanced. Doubtless Sophia occasionally whisked about and coddled him, but she was never seen by others to treat him even with forbearance.

Now and again the poor man turned like the worm. During the first month of their engagement he broke it five times. After the fifth he found so much misery in his endeavors to renew it that he gave up this method of asserting himself and settled down to the abject position of a slave.

Ward's chum, Fred Bowers, aware of his friend's suffering, tried in vain to inject into him a spirit of resistance. After continual failure Bowers advised Stanley to be married and, having once got his fiancée in his power, to try the Petruchio game. The infatuated man assented to the first part of the proposition, though he expressed no confidence in the second. When he asked Sophia to fix a day for the wedding she did so without any urging, but just before the final preparations were to be made she canceled the agreement.

Several times she named a day, only to ignore it. This was the hardest part of all that Stanley was forced to endure. Bowers tried to induce him to go abroad, leaving the shrew to repent her treatment of him and doubtless to be more kind to him on his return. But this was entirely beyond Ward's power to achieve. Several months of such tantalization passed, and the poor fellow began to show signs of a nervous breakdown.

"I'll tell you what you do, Ward," said Fred. "The Eaglet is in commission. Invite your fiancée to take a cruise, and, having her out at sea, some method will suggest itself of getting a grip on her. Once without protection, she'll have to give in."

"I can't invite her without inviting other women, can I?"

"I have it. Ask my sister, Helen."

"We must have a chaperone."

"My aunt, Mary Campbell. She's only five years older than I, and we're quite chummy. I can let both Mary and Helen into the secret, and they'll play into our hands beautifully."

"Well," said Ward after some thought, "your scheme is well enough, and the party is all right, but I have no confidence in its success. Rather than bend the knee the little devil will blow up the yacht and send herself as well as the rest of us sky high."

"Don't you believe it. I'm thinking of a scheme to put in practice when we're once out on the high seas that will scare the life out of her."

The party was made up as Bowers proposed. The Eaglet was provisioned and when Miss Mary Campbell and Helen Bowers learned the object of the cruise they were deeply interested. Both agreed to keep the secret from Sophia, though it must be admitted that she being of their sex, they sympathized with her rather than with her fiancée.

The Eaglet sailed from the yacht club's docks at an afternoon, and after dinner and an hour or two of pleasant chat on the afterdeck the ladies retired to their staterooms, and Bowers confided his plan to Stanley.

"What I propose," said Fred, "is that we lay to in a cove somewhere. During the night I'll take a part of the crew in the dinghy, pull away to the nearest town on the coast, dress up as members of the crew of a German submarine just come over, come back and take possession of the Eaglet and all on board. I'll ask a lot of questions, and you can tell me that Sophia is your fiancée, but keeps putting on the wedding. I'll find a way to scare her into your arms."

Ward listened to this proposition in silence and when it was finished shook his head.

"Don't you think you'll be recognized?" he asked.

"No. Plenty of paint, false whiskers and German togs will do the business. Mary and Helen will be in the secret, and they will pretend to be frightened out of their wits. Then, too, we'll come down so suddenly that there'll be no opportunity to look at us dispassionately."

Stanley's reluctant consent was won to a trial of the plan, though his confidence in it was not secured. The yacht was headed for a bay in which there were many islands, and when an advantageous retreat presented itself the Eaglet was run into it and her anchor dropped.

The men proved purposely uninteresting that the ladies might go to bed early, and by 10 o'clock the lights were out and all was quiet on board. Bowers, with half a dozen of the crew, slipped away with muffled oars.

In the morning when all except Bowers were sitting down to breakfast there was a shouting on the shore near by and many Teutonic expressions of disapprobation.

"What is it?" asked one of the girls. "We've struck a supply den for submarines," replied the steward, who had been tipped handsomely and told what to say.

"Heavens!" cried Miss Campbell. "What will become of us?" chimed in Miss Bowers.

Meanwhile the Germans, led by Bowers, pulled for the Eaglet and by the time the ladies had rushed on deck were climbing aboard.

"Who is in command here?" thundered Bowers.

"I am," replied Stanley.

"Well, you had discovered our depot of stores. You tell us. De Yankee navy come and rout us out."

This was said with terrible fierceness.

"We'll keep your secret," pleaded Miss Campbell. "Please don't kill us!"

"How I know that? Dead peoples tell no tales."

Turning to Stanley, the German asked for information of the different members of the party. Skillfully leading up to the relationship between Stanley and Miss Wartrace, Stanley gave the required information.

"Ach," cried the German, evidently disgusted, "you Americans spoil your women! No German woman would dare do that!"

"I'm not a German, if you please," replied Sophia, with an ominous flash of her eyes.

"But you say?"

"You say you're a brute."

"You say so? You marry me right away. I show how we Germans make a wife behave herself. I say, Shuster, kommen sie hier."

One of the Germans advanced. He was a young minister and had been shipped by Bowers with the crew of the Eaglet for a purpose.

"Marry me to this woman," said the German.

"I won't," said Sophia.

"I give you your choice. You marry me or this gentleman," pointing to Stanley.

"I'll marry neither of you," replied Sophia defiantly.

"Drop her in de water!" cried the German to his men. Several men advanced and were about to pretend to carry out the threat when Sophia called a halt.

"I'll marry one of you," she said.

"Which one?" asked the German.

"You."

This was too much for Miss Campbell and Miss Bowers, both of whom burst into laughter. That was the end of the effort to control the untractable Sophia. Bowers shrunk back, abashed. Stanley looked at his fiancée in astonishment.

"Do you mean that?" he asked.

"Yes. I do. Between the two of you I prefer the German."

The masqueraders disbanded, and all sat down to breakfast, for the attempt either to deceive or coerce Miss Wartrace had proved a failure. When the party returned to their starting point she had given Stanley to understand that all was off between them.

Miss Wartrace was also free from Stanley, free to turn the head of some other man. Her subsequent career proved that a willful woman in order to be cured of her willfulness must find her master. Sophia married a man with none of the gentler qualities, but plenty of the brute. In his hands she was as gentle as a dove. There is no evidence that he ill-treated her, but there is evidence that he had no occasion to ill-treat her. She knew her master.

Real Events.
"Do any events of importance ever occur here?" peevishly demanded the hypercritical young man from Kansas City. "Well," calmly replied the landlord of the Potomac tavern, "merely, noon and night happen here with unfailing regularity, and some of our home folks fear to regard them as events of considerable importance."—Kansas City Star.

WHAT IS THE RETURN?

That is the question which interests investors. Some are guided in the wrong direction by the offer of big dividends. Sometimes the whole principal is lost—and sometimes not even a single interest at payment is made.

NEW YORK OFFICIALS AT THE STUYVESANT

The quarterly meeting of the Bureau of Efficiency and Promotion of the New York board of water supply, and the civil service commissioners of the city was held at The Stuyvesant Thursday evening, this being the first time the joint meeting has been held in Kingston. The party arrived by automobile and today visited the Ashokan watershed. Civil service examinations were held today in all the counties through which the New York water supply reservoirs and aqueduct extend, for the position of laborers. Those who attended the meeting were Civil Service Commissioners Thomas C. Murray, Dr. J. A. Keim, J. F. Skelly and J. P. MacDonald; George F. Shady, superintendent of the aqueduct police force; Charles M. Clark, John F. Carroll, R. Stanton, W. J. Bubendorf and Lewen F. Searle.

HURLEY.

Hurley, Oct. 20.—John Ostrander is putting up an ice house next to his wagon house.

Dr. Kline of Syracuse has been visiting his sister, the past week. Miss Mabel Foerster and friend of Poughkeepsie made a short visit in Hurley during the week. Miss Foerster expects to take a position in a new hospital and training school in Cleveland, Ohio.

John Ostrander is putting the road to the Zandhoeke in good shape. On account of the tearing up of Hurley road has received already considerable traffic and more may be expected next summer. A solid bed of stone is made and then filled in and covered over with gravel.

The Ladies' Missionary Society met at the home of Mrs. Hiller on Wednesday afternoon; there was a fine attendance.

G. I. Lockwood remains quite ill with the "shingles."

A number of our Hurley Democratic brethren attended the reception to Judge Seabury on Tuesday.

Political affiliations are now being demonstrated by window pictures of the different candidates for office.

On the whole the village is rather apathetic to politics although occasionally enthusiasm froths up quite noticeably.

The alterations in the parsonage kitchen are now practically completed. These alterations have been quite extensive and must result in a pleasanter and warmer quarters. The job is a fine one.

The Willing Workers are planning an entertainment for the early part of November.

A large delegation of our Hurley women attended the Missionary Union in Kingston, the past week. Miss Lucille Felen is in Poughkeepsie.

James McPherson came down from Albany on Thursday on a short visit to his mother and sister.

The Rev. Mr. Ellis of the Roundout Presbyterian Church preached in our village church on Sunday afternoon. His sermon was very much enjoyed.

Donnie Durfee will preach on the coming Sunday.

At the annual school meeting last May the village voted $15 toward the purchase of books for the school library. This amount was duplicated by the State Board of Education, and as a result, 47 books have been lately added to the library, suitable for all grades. The value of this addition is attested to by the interest and enthusiasm of the scholars about these books.

Arnold Miller and Stanley Nelson of Brooklyn were at the Hiller household over Sunday.

Weeds Prove Theory.

Someone once said that "it's not so much a question of the survival of the fittest as of fitting as many as possible to survive" and truer words were never spoken. Everybody who has a garden and carefully tends it knows that the only things which really seem fit to survive are the weeds.

—Baltimore Sun.

Pen Mar's Name.

Pen Mar is so called because it is on the Mason-Dixon line, with Pennsylvania on one side and Maryland on the other, the first three letters of each state name being used to form the word.—Philadelphia North American.

SAM BERNSTEIN & COMPANY

KINGSTON, N. Y. PHONE 14 Cor. Wall St. and N. Front St.

Some Simplified Spelling. Schoolmasters have often serious problems to solve. The following note, containing only one word, was recently handed to a suburban pedagogue:

"Capatogostatuturing." The measure was tendered by one of the boys on behalf of a neighbor's child. The schoolmaster was perplexed for the moment. But he had received too many weirdly worded notes in his time to allow this one to baffle him, although it was not till the work of the school was over and much tobacco had been consumed that the word at last yielded its mystery, "Kept at home to go a-tatuturing."—London Chronicle.

What the Cook Was Doing. While a certain Richmond family were in Europe the dusky housemaid acted as caretaker, and more than once she received in the dining room an admirer in the person of one Henry Morgan, cab driver.

One evening as the maid and the jehs were making merry there came from the kitchen a painful scratching sound. "What's dat noise in de kitchen?" demanded the mat's admirer. "Must be a dawg tryin' to git in." "Don't ye worry," answered the maid. "Dat ain't no dawg a-scratchin' at de do'. Dat's de cook a-writin' a love letter to her housepachie."

DON'T FRET. No mental attitude is more disastrous to personal happiness and to personal usefulness in the world than worry and its vicious twin brother, despondency. The remedy for the evil lies in training the will to cast off cares and seeking a change of occupation when the first warning is sounded by nature in intellectual inertia. Relaxation is the foe of worry and "don't fret" one of the healthiest of maxims.

DUE ON TERMINAL

A detail of engineers from the barge canal terminal office of State Engineer Frank M. Williams is expected to begin work in Kingston tomorrow making preliminary surveys of proposed locations for the local barge canal terminal. Property on either side of the Rondout creek at the entrance to the harbor has been gone over by the state engineer in a personal inspection trip and the necessary data on the different parcels will now be secured by the field corps.

It is said that the state engineer was much impressed with the advantages presented by Rondout harbor as a useful connection for the system of state waterways. It is not known how long the engineers will be at work on the present survey.

IN SUPREME COURT.

One Case Taken From Jury and Another on Trial.

The action brought by Peck Brothers and Company against the L. F. Bannon Plumbing, Heating and Contracting Company, based upon a contract for plumbing in the high school, was taken from the jury in supreme court this afternoon by Judge Hasbrouck as questions of law are involved which the court will pass upon later. Foody & Day appear for the plaintiff and Attorney Walter N. Gill appears for the defendant.

The action of W. Scott Gillespie against S. Shufeldt, brought to recover $98.23 for goods sold the defendant a day or two previous to the sale of his Rondout restaurant, was then taken up for trial. The defense claims the bill should be collected from the present proprietor, Jenkins & Shufeldt appear for the plaintiff and Brinnier & Canfield for the defendant. The case will reach the jury this afternoon.

A Duck Supper.

A duck supper will be served by the Queen Esther Circle of St. James's Methodist Episcopal Church in the dining parlors of the church next Tuesday afternoon and evening from 5 until 8 o'clock. There are many famous cooks among the women of the church whose church suppers have gained an enviable reputation.

Father Holz at St. Mary's.

The Rev. Father Holz of Esopus will assist at St. Mary's Church Saturday afternoon and evening in the confessional and will also preach at high mass Sunday morning.

SUIT OVER LIQUORS.

Local Man Claimed Liquor Did Not Suit and Shipped It Back.

Recorder Lang as acting city judge today handed down a decision in the action brought by Moses Stern & Company of New York city against Abram Handler of this city to recover $76.50, the purchase price of certain liquors shipped to Mr. Handler by the plaintiff last June. The court found in favor of Mr. Handler. The liquors were shipped to Mr. Handler by the plaintiff, and Mr. Handler claimed that when he received the goods he found they were not the same as goods he had ordered and received last January. He tested the goods and claimed he found they were not up to the standard he had ordered and re-shipped the liquors back to the plaintiff. The liquors are now being held by the express company. Newton H. Fessenden appeared for plaintiff and John D. Eckert for defendant. The case was recently tried before Recorder Lang in city court.

RAIN PREVENTED RIDE.

R. Shear, of the Poughkeepsie schools, in electing him vice-president of the council at the Thursday morning session. Others elected were as follows: President, Wilbur Sprague, Utica; secretary and treasurer, George M. Elmendorf, of Herkimer. Albany was selected for the next annual convention. The council was disappointed in the ride planned for yesterday afternoon to the Ashokan dam, which had to be given up because of rain.

Smashed Top of Car.

Mrs. May K. Gordon of Kerhonkson smashed the top of her touring car while turning around on Fair street between Main and Pearl streets about two o'clock this afternoon. She had proceeded down Fair street but decided not to cross Pearl street, where sewer construction is in progress. In turning her car, she backed it in a tree with sufficient force to break the top of the car, but determinedly kept at the wheel and continued maneuvering until the car was completely around.

MENKE'S DAILY
SPORTING LETTER

(By Frank G. Menke).

New York, Oct. 20.—Every season—and this is no exception—the news stars of the football firmament shoot at some of the records that have been made in the other days of the gridiron sport. Football has progressed in the last few years.
Everything has been done to speed up the game and bring about the greatest ability in every player.
Yet only a few of the marks set by the old timers have been fractured.
All of which would indicate that the boys of a generation ago know quite a lot about this up-and-at-em past-time.

The drop-kickers have a new mark to boot at this season. It was made by Mark Payne, of Dakota Wesleyan, who drove a dropped ball over the goal posts from the 53 yard line in the game against Northern Normal last fall. This achievement of Payne's fractured
the 17 year old mark of 62 yards made by Pat O'Dea, of Wisconsin, against Northwestern. Payne's kick wasn't of the fluke order. It was a clever heist that sent the ball well over the cross bar and directly in the center, although he shot from a different angle.

Three men are tied for third place honors in the drop-kicking line, with a credit of 55 yards.
They are: J. V. Cowling, of Harvard, who made his mark against Princeton in 1883; J. E. Duffy, of Michigan in 1891 against Cornell; O.
W. Wilcox, (Mansfield, Pa. Normal)
against Wyoming.

Haxall's Record Remains.

J. T. Haxall, of Princeton, made a 65 yard placement kick against Yale in 1882, which is the record for that sort of scoring. J. P. Davis, of Dickinson, placed-kicked 58 yards against Pittsburgh in 1905 while the third place honors are divided by W. G. Crowell (Swartmore 1904) and Fred Dennion (Utah 1904) who booted the placed ball for 55 yards.

The longest touchdown run was made by G. S. McCaa, of Lafayette.
On October 15, 1909, while playing against Swartmore, McCaa's team got the ball on downs a few inches from its own line. The ball was passed to McCaa back of his own line and he ran the entire length of the field—110 yards—for a touchdown. This record probably will last for all time, as the rules since have been changed which limit the length of the field to 100 yards. G. C. Grey, of Oberlin, ran 100 yards through the Cornell line on October 10, 1908
while third place is given to Ernest, of Indiana, who made a 108 yard run against Iowa in 1912. Walter Eckersall's 106 yard sprint for Cornell in 1907 is next.

Following the Wisconsin kickoff gives his fourth place among the long-run boys.
James De Hart, of Pittsburgh, carved for himself a niche in the Hall of Fame last year. He got a hunted ball five yards behind his own goal line and ran it through a broken field for a touchdown—the longest that has been made since the 100 yard field has been in effect.
John Barrett, of Washington & Lee, got a Cornell kick-off one yard back of his own line and immediately raced down and across the Ithaca goal line.

D. J. Murphy, of the Christian Brother College, holds the record for a run with an intercepted forward pass. He snatched the ball on his own goal line when it was passed by one of the Southern Illinois College players and ran it the full length of the field for a score.

Many Great Booters Now.

A study of the football records show that the new style football has developed many great drop kickers.
Ten years or so ago not much attention was paid to this department. It was considered "baby tactics" for a team to try for a field goal when 20
to 50 yards from the enemy's goal line. That was the era when beef and brawn prevailed; when most teams scoffed at scoring a field goal while even the remotest chance remained for a touchdown.
But new football which has made the game one where fast, tricky but light men prevail has developed punting and drop-kicking to the highest possible standard. A dozen attempts now are made for field goals where one was made in the bygone days, therefore, many long-distance drop-kicks are being registered.

During 1915 exactly 40 field goals from the 40 yard line or better were made. That is almost as many as were accomplished in ten years by the old-timers who used to scrimmage where men of today kick. Payne, with his 63 yard boot, tops the list of distance kickers for 1915. Wilcox follows with his 55 yard wallop.
Guernsey of Yale, who kicked 53
yards against Princeton, is third. J.
L. Cody of Vanderbilt, S. Ewing of Penn State and C. Parker of Dubuque are tied for fourth place with 50 yard kicks. Parker, by the way, booned two from that distance. The others slip down from 48 yards by C. C. Fultz of Purdue to fourteen yards from the 40 yard line made by players in different sections of the country.

And from the way the coaching persons talk and the dopesters dope, one is led to believe that the day of kicking has just begun; that what was done in 1915 would be anything remarkable in comparison with what will be accomplished this year when the gridiron stars finally untosen their boots.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE
LECTURE DELIVERED

The lecture on Christian Science delivered last evening in the church on Fair street by William W. Porter,
C. S. B., of New York city, a member of the Board of Lectureship of the First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass., was listened to with interest by an appreciative audience.
The speaker was introduced by the First Reader of the church and spoke in part as follows:

That it is the undoubted right and privilege of every person to know the truth is a proposition with which all will readily agree. Therefore we may be assured in the outset that it is a right thing for us to be here seeking to know the truth—seeking to know something of the healing truth involved in Christian Science.
It is not the purpose of the lecture to rudely challenge or compel the relinquishment of any cherished religious principle, or the abandonment of any sustaining or upholding ideal, opinion or thought, which may have heretofore been a source of comfort and help to anyone.

And here it may be stated that if man is to attain to the full benefit of either religion or healing they must be to him as simple and necessary, as universally available and certain, as that two and two make four.
It should be universally recognized and known that the will of God must be good.

There are hundreds of thousands of men and women and children in all lands who have learned and are learning daily in Christian Science that God's will is—must be—good!
Whatever humanity has known or believed concerning God in all ages has determined the happiness, harmony, health, peace, prosperity,
progress and development of humanity.

And right here is encountered a fact the significance of which may never be forgotten or lost sight of, namely: That with the true idea of God which Christ Jesus inculcated came his many mighty healing and regeneration, as well as those of the students and followers which continued upwards of three centuries thereafter.

It would be impossible to conceive of God except as all-wise, or infinite Mind; and as there is no place where Mind is not, God who is all-wise, infinite Mind, is omnipresent, hence incorporeal.

In language inspired and inspiring, John, who fulfilled so wonderfully the great trust reposed in him
by the Master—this beloved disciple declares that God is Love! Love that is without beginning and without ending, "the same yesterday, and today, and forever," as defined and interpreted by Principle and Truth.

How much humanity has needed
to know this God who is infinite Love!

All of the teachings of Christ Jesus point clearly not only to the properly, but to the imperative necessity for gaining a true understanding of God, and of truly understanding man's unity with God.

The healing and redemptive works of Christian Science afford proof to thoughtful persons that the results in question are not fragmentary or haphazard in their nature and occurrence; but by reason of their magnitude, multiplicity and permanence,
they belong to and are rightly classified as the effect of law!

The term law may be and is variously defined, but in its true and highest meaning law may be said to be that which manifests or makes known the enduring stability of Truth, the perfect continuity of Life,
the unchanging unity or oneness of Love—in other words that which reflects or manifests the authority or potency of all-inclusive, creative Mind, or God!

As early as the year 1866 the denial of the substantiality of matter was made by Mrs. Eddy, and today every year thereafter, physical science has announced the practical disappearance of any ultimate form or primal state of matter cognizable to the physical senses.

Law which fails to maintain stability is no longer law.
Therefore, turning away from that which has proved its insufficiency and instability—in the language and spirit of the great apostle to the Gentiles, "forgetting those things which are behind,"—we look elsewhere.

When the sick man is healed in Christian Science, something has taken place. It cannot be said that that which has destroyed a condition of discord and sickness, and established a condition of health, harmony and happiness is—nothing.
Effect implies cause. Therefore, that which has destroyed sickness and distress and established health and harmony, must be truly substantial must be the evidence or law of perfect creative Mind, or God.

Ask yourselves naturally, how may I avail myself of this healing and regenerative law of Truth and Life and Love? The answer here is simple, clear and conclusive, and may not be involved in any manner, namely,
Study well the Christian Science
textbooks, the Bible and "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," and you will find as a result of this desire on your part, as a result of this study and contemplation, that you are being blessed, and healed, and your burdens lightened; that you are being led to green pastures
and beside still waters.

There are hundreds of thousands
of men and women and children throughout the world who have been healed of their sickness and pain,
healed of their sorrow and grief, healed of their sin and misery, because Mrs. Eddy has been a citizen of the world. (See Science and Health.)

And it is not a strange thing that these who have been thus healed,
should treasure with sincere gratitude the gift of Christian Science which this kind friend and gentle woman has laid upon the altar of humanity.

Characteristics of Giving.

more than another indicate something of the character and purpose of the "giving." Above all, she was always giving, giving, giving of the gift of Christian Science which had been so freely given to her.

And in the final disposition of her estate to be used "in the extension of the religion of Christian Science" as taught by her, she has accounted well for her stewardship, and given to humanity an eternal legacy of enduring love.
Mrs. Eddy's faith and trust in God and her confidence in the ever-presence of divine Love, was the simple faith, and trust, and confidence of a little child, and this, together with the courage, strength and zeal of one who had caught the vision of a great purpose, made her the most tender and loving, and yet the most compassionately firm and constructive character of her time.
By far the majority of those who have been healed and blessed through Christian Science have come to know
Mrs. Eddy by means of her writings.
In all of which there is to be found a continual help and inspiration, and above all, a most beautiful consistency in the statement of Principle and practice throughout; and this consistency, my friends, is not the careful studied consistency of one who feared that she might utter something contradictory in its nature, but the simple, straightforward consistency of one who heard the demands of God, and neither hesitated nor feared to correlate those demands in the Science of being or Christian Science.
It is the will of God, the purpose of infinite Mind, that man should know the truth. And you may begin at once in Christian Science to discriminate between the unreal and the real, between the untrue and the true, to reject and deny the suggestions of false material consciousness or "murderer from the beginning," and instead, to appropriate as yours the things that belong to immortal man, the things that forever reflect the eternal creative Mind, or God;—and in the identity thus established to be free!

Gender of Ships.
It is a well-known fact that ships are almost invariably referred to as being of the feminine gender. Now and then a ship is called "it," but with rare exceptions the reference is "she" or "her." Just why this is so it would be difficult to tell—the custom is so ancient.

Patience.
Patience is the courage of the conqueror, the strength of man against casting-of the one against the world, and of the soul against matter. Therefore it is the courage of the gospel,
and its importance, in a social view,
and to races and institutions, cannot be too earnestly inculcated.—Bulwer.

REGISTER TOMORROW!
Saturday, October 21, is the last day for registration. If you don't

Foolish Rabbits.
A hare will dart in the path of a giant locomotive at night and run at the rate of sixty miles an hour in the full glare of the headlight and finally drop exhausted. It will never leap from between the rails to a place of safety. It pursues the same tactics on the highway when autos are speeding.

No Temptations.
"Blacksmiths seem to have a reputation for honesty." "Deservedly so,"
but few partly, perhaps, to the nature of the business. Nobody encounters a blacksmith with trust funds. There is nothing to adulterate in his line. Compared with some of us, a blacksmith has few temptations to resist.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Women as Inventors.
Mary Kees was the first American woman to take out a patent, in 1798,
for weaving straw with silk or thread;
but with the spread of education the number of feminine inventions have increased, until between 1884 and 1910
the sum total of 7,942 patents was granted them. These varied from a baby jumper to a deep-sea telescope, and from a fountain pen to the first cooking stove.

DON'T WAIT—REGISTER NOW!
If you don't register, you can't and register. Tomorrow is the last day of registration.
